

Know your ARC 2022

Coin Street Conference Centre, 108 Stamford Street, London, SE1 9NH

Thursday 26 January, 3-5pm

Programme

2.30 – 3pm:

Registration

3pm – 3.10pm:

Welcome

from NIHR ARC South London's director, Professor Sir Graham Thornicroft

3.10pm – 5pm:

Know your ARC 2022 awards ceremony

Co-chaired by Dr Rishi Das-Gupta, chief executive, Health Innovation Network and Dr Jayati Das-Munshi, clinical reader in social and psychiatric epidemiology at King's College London and honorary consultant psychiatrist with South London & Maudsley NHS Trust

Research theme awards:

● Communicating your research

Judged by Syeda Hasnain-Mohammed, head of communications at King's Health Partners, and Alex Booth and Franca Davenport, communications and engagement managers at NIHR Maudsley Biomedical Research Centre

● Most innovative patient, public involvement and engagement activity

Judged by Beverley Randall, programme manager at Mosaic Clubhouse and Clubhouse members, Carol Aka and Louise Wilson

● Most successful equity, diversity and inclusion activity

Judged by Chifundo Stubbs, equality and diversity lead, Dawn Beaumont-Jewell, deputy chief operating officer, Christopher Ward, study support service specialist, NIHR CRN South London

● Most successful response to the Covid-19 pandemic informed by applied research

Judged by Ann-Marie Murtagh, research and innovation director and head of nursing, King's College Hospital NHS Foundation Trust and Dr Kate Blake, director of research and development strategy, Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust

● Research impact

Judged by Tanya Schlovogt, director of research quality at the Institute of Psychiatry, Psychology & Neuroscience at King's College London and South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust and Dr Natalie Wall, research impact lead, King's College London

Individual awards:	Most original research paper          Judged by Dr Julie Williams, postdoctoral research worker, King's College London and Professor Kim Goldsmith, professor of medical statistics and complex intervention methodology, King's College London Most active contribution from a predoctoral researcher          Judged by Dr Andrew Walker, head of evaluation and implementation science, Health Innovation Network and Laura Fischer, NIHR ARC Mental Health Implementation Network, patient and community involvement, engagement and participation, co-lead Most active contribution from a postdoctoral researcher          Judged by Professor Priscilla Harries, professor of occupational therapy, Kingston University, deputy theme lead, research capacity development, NIHR ARC South London and Dr Shalini Ahuja, lecturer in health systems and implementation science, King's College London Most active contribution from a member of professional services staff          Judged by Ranjeet Kaile, executive director of communications, stakeholder engagement and public affairs, South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust and Sarah Rae, NIHR ARC Mental Health Implementation Network, patient and community involvement, engagement and participation, co-lead
---------------------------	---

ARC South London PhD scholarships	presented by Professor Nick Sevdalis, associate co-director of NIHR ARC South London and director of the Centre for Implementation Science, King's College London
--	---

Closing comments	from Professor Sir Graham Thornicroft
-------------------------	---------------------------------------

5pm – 6pm:	Please join us for drinks and nibbles
-------------------	---------------------------------------

#yourARC